Super Bonus 2

Our Favorite Bonii, Revisited

Every contest, there's always a bonus or two that's so cool in concept that we wish we could've been there to write some of it. Conversely, there's always one that seems to leave a lot of ground uncovered or undeveloped. Even for contests that one is contributing to oneself, there's always an idea for a great question that only occurs months later, or that one wishes one could update after the fact. For all of those reasons, we're taking the opportunity now to write the questions we couldn't for the eight contests that took place over our undergraduate stays at Williams over the past four years. Enjoy.

Hour 4- Abbreviated TV Theme Songs

We've taken ten TV theme songs and reduced each word to its first letter; e.g., "So no one told you life was gonna be this way" would become "S N O T Y L W G B T W," to which you would respond "Friends" (or you would if you wanted points). Name the shows from which these abbreviate theme songs come:

Hour 7- Art

Yeah, yeah, we know, there's been three full art history hour bonii, one super, and several mini-sections in the last eight contests, and doing more might seem a bit ridiculous. But in all of those bonii there are some important people, eras and disciplines that were overlooked, and some clever ideas we wanted to develop on, so let's have another go.

Part I: Draw in the missing element from the following paintings.

1. (The Anatomy Lesson of Dr. Tulp--missing corpse)
2. (School of Athens-- missing Aristotle pointing down and Plato pointing up)
3. (Luncheon on the Grass--missing woman bent over bathing)
4. (Burial of Count Orgaz-- missing two bishops carrying Orgaz)
5. (Coronation of Napoleon-- missing Josephine kneeling and accepting crown)

Part II: Name the work of painting, sculpture, architecture or photography below and its creator:

6. (Bernini- Hades and Persephone)
